
Curtiss P40B

View this kit on the website.

During the early stages of WWII, the American built Curtiss P-40B proved to be one of the most important fighter aircraft available to Allied Air Forces. Flying with the RAF in North Africa and the American Volunteer Group in China, the Allison V-1710-33 powered P-40B was to become one of the most distinctive fighters of the entire war, wearing their fearsome shark-mouth artwork.
