
Fokker EII/RAF BE2c WW1 Dogfight Double

View this kit on the website.

By the middle of 1915, Allied and German aircraft were proficient at obtaining strategically important battlefield reconnaissance information. Denying the enemy the ability to secure this information was now of vital importance. The combat introduction of the new Fokker E.III Eindecker fighter over the Western Front saw a new bloody chapter in aerial warfare, as this advanced fighter took a heavy toll of Allied aircraft.
