Making its debut in the 1999 Monte Carlo rally, the Ford Focus WRC was the replacement for the famous Ford Escort Cosworth WRC. Driven by two rally legends during the 2002 series the Ford Focus WRC 02 found itself often at the forefront of the stage times. Colin McRae drove one of the 4wd 2000CC machines, winning 2 rallies that year in Greece and the Safari rally in Kenya. While his teammate and Spanish superstar Carlos Sainz managed a single victory on rally Argentina. But the Spaniards consistency throughout the season saw him finish above Colin McRae in 3rd place in the championship, beating Colin into fourth. The Focus WRC continued a long line of powerful and iconic rallying Fords, one that continues to today. With the vibrant livery of the car as well as its excellent looks helping it to stand out on the start line.
